Comments: 'What's great about this country is that America started the tradition where the richest consumers buy essentially the same things as the poorest. You can be watching TV and see Coca-Cola, and you can know that the President drinks Cokes, Liz Taylor drinks Cokes, and just think, you can drink Coke, too. A Coke is a Coke and no amount of money can get you a better Coke than the one the bum on the corner is drinking. All the Cokes are the same and all the Cokes are good. Liz Taylor knows it, the President knows it, the bum knows it, and you know it.' (A. Warhol, 'The Philosophy of Andy Warhol'). Warhol's 'You're In' personalized the readymade classic Coca-Cola bottle with a lustrous coat of silver spray paint and his characteristic initials emblazoned on the bottle cap. A Pop Art reinterpretation of the Duchampian ready-made is illustrated through the use of a real Coke bottle. It is an icon in the Warholian pantheon of famous names and brands and stands alongside the Campbell's Soup Can and the figures of Elvis Presley and Marilyn Monroe as a quintessential icon of America and the twentieth century. Warhol's fascination with the metalizing of everyday objects began in 1967 with his "silvered bomb." His next collection of silver spray painted objects, done in the same year, was his Coca-Cola bottles. They made their visual premiere on the poster for the Museum of Merchandise for an exhibition produced by The Fine Arts Committee of the Philadelphia YMHA. The poster advertised Warhol's Coca-Cola bottles as being filled with toilet water and mischievously (rakishly?) entitled "You're In." The outwardly shiny and slick bottles were, however, actually filled with "Silver Lining," an inexpensive cologne. By suggesting that the Coke bottle was filled with urine and presenting a cologne that had a cheap scent, Warhol seemed to defame the product that all Americas shared. Coca-Cola, however, was not amused and demanded that their production and sale be halted. This work encapsulates Warhol's profound and unparalleled ability to both retain and destroy the commercial identity of the everyday object [courtesy Phillips, London & Christie's, London]. Ansel Adams (American, 1902-1984). "Window, Bear Valley, California". Original vintage photogravure. 1973. Printed 1974. Signed in the plate. Intended edition of 950 (of which all were printed?). White Bristol paper. Full margins. Fine, quality printing. Fine condition. Overall size: 17 1/4 x 13 in. (438 x 330 mm). Image size: 13 x 10 1/8 in. (330 x 257 mm). Very scarce. Quite possibly printed in a run of far less than the 950 proposed. The printing was derived from a high-resolution negative produced with Polaroid Type 105 Positive/Negative film. In the early 1970s Polaroid launched a project to show that this film process could successfully compete with gelatin silver prints as a fine art medium. The company gave cameras plus a generous stock of film to leading photographers of the day. Their output was then published by the Polaroid Corporation. The legendary, iconic, and famous poster of two of the greatest artists of the latter part of the 20th Century, perhaps the most poignant and enduring image of the 1980's NYC art scene. The poster was reissued by Tony Shafrazi in 1999. The image is by Michael Halsband. The show displayed the collaborative paintings that Warhol and Basquiat worked on from 1984-1985. These works were the culmination of their friendship, one which began in the late 70's. Eventually, the two began work on the paintings that would constitute the bulk of this exhibition. But the process was not without conflict. Warhol, whose work ethic was legendary, grew frustrated with Basquiat's erratic appearances and the two worked very little on the paintings at the same time. The show was a financial and critical failure and marked the end of their friendship. The full title of the poster is: Tony Shafrazi * Bruno Bischofberger Present: Warhol * Basquiat Paintings © 1999 Tony Shafrazi Gallery 119 Wooster Street New York, September 14 through October 19, 1985, 163 Mercer Street New York. 137: EVERETT SHINN - The Ballerina Ingovar

USD 8,000 - 10,000

Everett Shinn (American, 1876-1953). "The Ballerina Ingovar". Oil on canvas. c1922. Signed and titled, lower left. Condition: Original untouched condition. Several patches (see images). A few scratches in image. Unframed. Provenance: Through Ernest Lawson; Private Collection, Lake Forest, Illinois. Image size: 32 x 24 in. (813 x 610 mm). Portraits by Shinn are rare and seldom seen, a little known aspect of his oeuvre. While he is commonly associated with lower-class urban themes, he was enchanted with the more glamorous aspects of urban life. Shinn was an American realist painter and member of the Ashcan School, also known as 'The Eight,' the youngest member of the group of modernist painters who explored the depiction of real life. He is most famous for his numerous paintings of New York and the theater and of various aspects of luxury and modern life inspired by his home in New York City. It has been pointed out that unlike most members of the Eight, Shinn was not attracted to art focused on "people sleeping under bridges." In fact, he loved the glamour of Uptown, fashionably dressed ladies, and above all, Shinn wanted to depict the excitement of the theater. [25243-15-6000]

Our example of the 'Grotesque Heads' is clearly in the tradition of Ensor's "Self-Portrait with Masks" (1899) and "The Seven Deadly Sins," the 1904 portfolio of etchings, among other works. Quite possibly a study for a later, more finished work. Ensor was a painter and printmaker who was an early and important influence on expressionism and surrealism. Michel Melot, "The Impressionist Print" (Yale University Press, 1996) says, "The most elaborate of Cezanne's etchings is the 'Head of a Girl', with the shadow in the background worked over with a roulette. Whereas the landscapes are presented without any reworking, this simple, regular face, seen in close up and head on against quite a strong back light with its attendant shadows, has been made more dramatic: the hair is a tangle of lines, there are acid spots everywhere and the eyes are black dots." 150: KASIMIR MALEVICH - Suprematist Composition

USD 25,000 - 30,000

Kasimir Malevich (Russian, 1879 - 1935). "Suprematist Composition [with cross]". Gouache, watercolor, and pen & ink on paper. c1916. Signed with the initials, lower right. Painted on cream wove paper. Very good to fine condition. Overall size: 8 3/4 x 6 3/4 in. (222 x 171 mm). Malevich works in any medium are highly sought after and are quite rare at auction. The paintings of the Russian avant-garde have, in general, elicited two types of interpretation: one focuses on issues of technique and style; the other concentrates on social and political issues. The former method is usually applied to Kazimir Malevich's early paintings, grounded as they are in the forms of Cubism, Futurism, and other contemporaneous art movements; the latter largely avoids Malevich in favor of more politically engaged artists such as El Lissitzky, Aleksandr Rodchenko, and Vladimir Tatlin. From the formalist's standpoint, our present example offered here in this auction is, in its mastery of shapes, a perfect example of his newly created Russian style, Suprematism. [29914-1-16000]

156: TSUKIOKA YOSHITOSHI - Study for Woodcut #12

USD 600 - 700

Tsukioka Yoshitoshi (Japanese, 1839-1892). "Study for Woodcut #12". Pen and ink drawing. c1880s. Translucent Gampi (Washi/Rice/Mulberry) paper affixed at the corners to a semi-opaque, handmade, laid paper. Composed with black and cinnabar inks. Very good condition; the black spots visible on the jpg are on the support sheet, not the drawing, the Gambi paper being translucent. Provenance: Wittenborn Art Books, New York City. Overall size: 10 3/4 x 7 in. (273 x 178 mm). Image size: 9 5/8 x 6 1/8 in. (244 x 156 mm). Drawings by Yoshitoshi are very scarce. This drawing came from a hand bound album of drawings and sketches, with Yoshitoshi's name and date inscribed, not in his hand, on the first leaf (please see images). The date is written "the 27th year of Meiji period, Oct. 10th." The 27th year of the Meiji is the year 1894, two years after the Artist's death. The album is hand bound and had many blank pages. In addition, the final non-blank pages are colored around the drawings with cinnabar, clearly by the artist. Hence while the album could have been assembled after his death, the more likely probability is that it was bound by the Artist and became a working album, which he continually added to over the years. He is also known as Taiso Yoshitoshi, Yoshitoshi Taiso, and Tsukioka Kinzaburo Yoshitoshi. [25341-2-400]

166: RALSTON CRAWFORD - St. Petersburg to Tampa

USD 20,000 - 25,000

Ralston Crawford (Canadian/American, 1906 - 1978). "St. Petersburg to Tampa [study]". Watercolor, ink, and pencil on paper. 1937-1938. Signed lower left. The image itself is in fine condition; the work was affixed to a contemporary backing board, was later front mounted and framed, and then later roughly removed from the mat, the image itself being completely preserved. Overall size: 10 1/2 x 12 3/8 in. (267 x 314 mm). Our drawing is the earliest known study for Crawford's oil painting "St. Petersburg to Tampa" (1938), in the collection of the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C. Our work is distinguished by its lack of poles on the left side of the bridge which are present in the (undoubtedly) final study for the painting, the mixed media on paper example which sold for $8,250 at Sotheby's New York, December 3, 1992, lot #189. The finished painting then abstracts the poles as well as the distant green landscape, absent in the painting. Crawford was an abstract painter, printmaker, and photographer. His early work placed him with Precisionist artists like Niles Spencer and Charles Sheeler. His later work was geometrically abstract. Robert Rauschenberg (American, 1925-2008). "Speaking in Tongues [the Talking Heads record]". Vinyl record in plastic case. 1983. Signed by the artist on the original shrink wrap. Large edition, of which few survive intact. Fine condition; original shrink wrap intact; never opened; never played. Provenance: Private collection, Deerfield, Illinois. Image size: 12 7/8 x 12 7/8 in. (327 x 327 mm). Rare when signed. The legendary record for which Rauschenberg won the 1984 Grammy Award for best recording package. "Complete with spinning plexi-discs and layers of images, it was the perfect foil for Rauschenberg's interest in collaged objects. Red, yellow and blue discs were layered with photographs of number plates, car bumpers, and suburban bedrooms. The cover looks almost exactly like his 1967 piece "Revolver," with similar plexi-discs set in a concrete base with a motor to spin the prints. Only with the Talking Heads' artwork we got to control them ourselves – on a record, no less. Something that's accessible and affordable. It was the ideal medium for an artist who'd been known to say that he wanted to 'work in the gap between art and life.' " (courtesy Jennifer Kabat). Image copyright © Licensed by VAGA, New York, NY. Andy Warhol (American, 1928 - 1987). "Portrait of Andy Warhol [poster]". Color offset lithograph. 1982. Signed by Warhol in black marker, lower right. Edition unknown, presumed small. Light cream wove paper. The full sheet. Fine impression. Very good to fine condition. Provenance: Private collection, Sweden, thence to our consignor. Overall size: 22 x 20 in. (559 x 508 mm). Warhol had a joint exhibition with the German-born photographer Hans Namuth (1915-1990) at New York's Castelli Gallery from January 9th to the 30th, 1982. Namuth specialized in portraits and is most famous for his photographs of Jackson Pollock creating his iconic drip paintings. This portrait of Warhol is part of Namuth's project to photograph the artists represented by Castelli. It shows Warhol standing in front of Rubens's painting 'Reconciliation of the Queen and her Son', which was part of his Marie de Medici Cycle. Rubens was famous for painting the celebrities of his day, providing them with an image to bolster their power. Warhol did the same with his pop portraits; indeed Robert Rosenblum described him as "an ideal court painter". Rubens also employed a large studio of assistants which is paralleled in Warhol's 'Factory.' An impression of this work is included in the collection of the National Galleries of Scotland, accession no. AR00437. Edition of 500. Cream wove Marais "vellum" paper. Wide margins. Fine impression with delicately applied pochoir. Fine condition, very crisp, with a pronounced platemark and the expected light tanning to the sheet. Provenance: Ex-collection Marty Gordon (the legendary print dealer), Martin Gordon, Inc., New York City, his handstamp verso. Overall size: 10 3/4 x 9 in. (273 x 229 mm). Degas created a considerable body of monotypes in the late 19th century. A number of them were reduced in size and recreated as original works in 1938 and again in 1948, of which our example is part. The verso bears the handstamp of Edgar Achille Gaston DeGas-Musson (1875-1953), the son of Estelle Angelina Musson DeGas and Jean Baptiste Rene DeGas (the brother of Edgar Degas). [29329-2-600]

266: BEATRIX POTTER - Peter Rabbit Eating Carrots

USD 35,000 - 40,000

Beatrix Potter (English, 1866-1943). "Peter Rabbit Eating Carrots". Original watercolor with pen and ink. c1927. Signed in watercolor, lower right. Light cream wove paper. A finely drawn work. Overall very good condition; a hint of staining at the center left margin, a few very minor ink marks well away from the image, presents very well. Provenance: the Artist, gifted to Joy Brownlow, who in turn gifted it to Marjorie H. Hiley, from whom it was acquired by our consignor. Brownlow, known as 'Brownie,' was the County Camp Advisor for the Windermere Girl Guides, who arranged regular visits to Potter's properties in the Lake District for camping and admiring her work. Potter frequently gave the Guides autographed copies of her books to give as prizes in their competitions, and joined in their activities while on the properties. Hiley, of Kendal, South Lakeland District, Cumbria, took over from Brownlow as captain of the Guides in 1947 and remained leader until she retired 30 years later. Overall size: 8 x 6 3/8 in. (203 x 162 mm). A splendid iconic drawing, the original work having appeared in 1902 in "The Tale of Peter Rabbit." Potter revisited the composition a number of times over the years as a gift to family and friends. Helen Beatrix Potter was an illustrator in watercolors and author of children's books including "The Tale of Peter Rabbit" (1902), "The Tailor of Gloucester" (1903) and "The Tale of Mr. Jeremy Fisher" (1906). She became internationally famous for her stories that 'humanized' animals such as Mrs. Tiggy Winkle, the hedgehog, and the garden thieving Peter Rabbit. This image is now in the public domain. Poster image copyright © David Hockney. Hockney, often referred to as England's greatest living artist, made brilliant contributions to the world of opera as a stage and costume designer. He also designed numerous posters. Beginning in 1975 with his work for Stravinsky's 'The Rakes Progress', until 1990 when he worked on 'Turandot', Hockney worked for the major opera houses. Among his most memorable productions were Mozart's 'Magic Flute' and Wagner's 'Tristan and Isolde'. His collaboration with the Metropolitan Opera on Eric Satie's 'Parade' is best remembered for this poster. The image, with Hockney's neo-pop decor and costumes, showcases a juggler whose contortions fit eye-catchingly into the poster's elongated format. If the opera itself is not so popular, this image has become a classic. [courtesy Nick Lowry, Swann Galleries]. [28321-8-1200]

Deckle edges lower and right margins. Fine impression. Very good condition. Overall size: 10 3/8 x 8 7/16 in. (264 x 214 mm). According to 'Gordon's Art Reference' the auction record for this print is $11,651 (C$13,800) at Sotheby's, Toronto & Ritchie's (Important Canadian Art, # 729) - 11/22/2004 – lot #136; the previous record had been $6,818 (C$10,091) at Sotheby's, Toronto (Important Canadian Art) - 6/2/1999 – lot #108. Milne's print, also known as 'Hilltop,' was commissioned for "The Colophon" in an edition of 3,000 unnumbered impressions, all hand printed by him on his press in Palgrave, Ontario, and individually signed in pencil by him in the lower margin. The task took him over a year to accomplish, with consequent variant states within the edition. Milne made this print using a unique method of printing in color from superimposed plates that he developed. He removed the excess ink from his plates with a rag, leaving an uneven texture on the plate. By varying the wiping, each print became unique, with the wiping residue from each plate remaining as random flecks of color. Since he printed so many impressions, Milne had to create about eight sets of the plates and steel face them to protect the fragile burr. Artwork image copyright © the artist or assignee. 294: DAVID BAILEY - Nude with Hat

USD 1,000 - 1,200

David Bailey (English, b.1938). "Nude with Hat". Vintage photogravure. 1974. Printed 1974. Signed in the plate. Intended edition of 950 (of which all were printed?). High-grade white Bristol archival paper. Full margins, as printed. Fine, quality printing. Fine condition. Overall size: 17 1/4 x 13 in. (438 x 330 mm). Image size: 13 x 10 1/8 in. (330 x 257 mm). Very scarce. Quite possibly printed in a run of far less than the 950 proposed. The printing was derived from a high-resolution negative produced with Polaroid Type 105 Positive/Negative film. In the early 1970s Polaroid launched a project to show that this film process could successfully compete with gelatin silver prints as a fine art medium. The company gave cameras plus a generous stock of film to leading photographers of the day. Their output was then published by the Polaroid Corporation. Image copyright © David Bailey. [24695-3-600]

297: SHIKO MUNAKATA - Nude Female

USD 3,000 - 4,000

Shiko Munakata (Japanese, 1903-1975). "Nude Female". Woodcut with watercolor handcoloring. 1934. Pencil seal in the artist's hand, lower right. Edition unknown, presumed small. Thin cream wove paper. Wide margins. Fine impression. Very good condition. Provenance: Through a relative of the artist, Aomori, Japan; Private collection, Houston, Texas. Overall size: 7 13/16 x 5 5/8 in. (198 x 143 mm). Image size: 6 x 4 3/4 in. (152 x 121 mm). Extremely rare, especially with the handcoloring, and a splendid example of Munakata's very early work. We could not find any auction records of a Munakata print created before 1935. In 1926, Munakata saw Kawakami Sumio's black-and-white woodcut "Early Summer Breeze," and decided to work on black-and-white prints. From 1928 onwards, Hiratsuka Unichi (1895-1997), another renowned sosaku hanga printmaker, taught Munakata wood carving. In 1929, four of his prints were accepted by the Shunyokai Exhibition, which bolstered his confidence in the new medium. In the following year (1930), four more of his woodcuts were accepted for the Kokugakai national exhibition, thus establishing him in his career. Image copyright © The Estate of Shiko Munakata. 298: FRANTISEK DRTIKOL - Nu triangulaire

USD 800 - 1,000

Frantisek Drtikol (Czech, 1883 - 1961). "Nu triangulaire [Modernist nude study]". Original vintage sepia-toned photogravure. c1925. Printed 1925. Signature stamp, lower right, recto; studio stamp, verso. Edition unknown, presumed very small. High-grade archival paper. Wide margins. Fine, quality printing. Very good to fine condition. Overall size: 10 1/4 x 7 1/2 in. (260 x 190 mm). Image size: 8 3/8 x 6 1/4 in. (213 x 159 mm). Drtikol's nudes show development from pictorialism and symbolism to modern composite pictures of the nude body, with geometric decorations and thrown shadows, where one finds a number of parallels with the avant-garde works of his epoch. These often are reminiscent of Cubism, and at the same time the nudes suggest the kind of movement that was characteristic of the futurism aesthetic. 302: RUDOLF BAUER - Non-Objective Solitary Confinement Prison Drawing [No.10]

USD 1,200 - 1,500

Rudolf Bauer (German, 1881 - 1953). "Non-Objective Solitary Confinement Prison Drawing [No.10]". Pencil drawing on paper. 1938. Signed with the initial in pencil (as was his custom), lower right. Drawn on "brown paper bag" paper. As found condition; no conservation has been attempted. Provenance: Estate of the Artist. Overall size: 6 1/2 x 8 13/16 in. (165 x 224 mm). Another example of a Bauer prison drawing sold for $6,875 at Doyle New York, November 5, 2013, lot #86. Our drawing is a highly important example of Bauer's rare "prison drawings." Among them, the "solitary confinement prison drawings" are of the utmost rarity. As Wikipedia states, "during his time in prison [1938], he created dozens of non-objective drawings on scavenged scraps of paper." Bauer was in prison for several months. Initially he was held in solitary confinement. He created the present drawing, our example, during the solitary confinement period. He then was moved to the general prison population and allowed to perform office clerking functions. During this time he created yet more drawings, generally more refined and on office stationery, many with typewriter type on the verso. These drawings, while still rare, are obtainable, whereas the "solitary confinement" drawings are virtually unobtainable. The complete text of the Wikipedia article dealing with this period: "In 1938, upon his return from an exhibition of his work in Paris, Bauer was arrested by the Nazis for his 'degenerate' art and for speculating on the black market — meaning selling his work to [Solomon] Guggenheim. The previous year Bauer's work had been included in the infamous Degenerate Art show in Munich, organized by the Nazis to show all the deviant, abstract art. In spite of this Bauer had refused to move from his home country. Upon his arrest Bauer was held in a Gestapo prison for several months, as [Hilla] Rebay and Guggenheim worked to free him. After several false starts, he was finally released unconditionally in August 1938. During his time in prison, he created dozens of non-objective drawings on scavenged scraps of paper. He spent the next months getting his paperwork in order and made the difficult decision to leave his homeland, emigrating to the United States in July 1939, just months before the beginning of World War II." Image size: 11 5/16 x 8 1/4 in. (287 x 210 mm). The photograph that has become known as "Migrant Mother" is one of a series of photographs that Dorothea Lange made of Florence Owens Thompson and her children in February or March of 1936 in Nipomo, California. Lange was concluding a month's trip photographing migratory farm labor around the state for what was then the Resettlement Administration. In 1960, Lange gave this account of the experience: "I saw and approached the hungry and desperate mother, as if drawn by a magnet. I do not remember how I explained my presence or my camera to her, but I do remember she asked me no questions. I made five exposures, working closer and closer from the same direction. I did not ask her name or her history. She told me her age, that she was thirty-two. She said that they had been living on frozen vegetables from the surrounding fields, and birds that the children killed. She had just sold the tires from her car to buy food. There she sat in that lean-to tent with her children huddled around her, and seemed to know that my pictures might help her, and so she helped me. There was a sort of equality about it." 339: ANDY WARHOL - Mick Jagger Suite (second edition, deluxe set)

USD 10,000 - 12,000

Andy Warhol (American, 1928 - 1987). "Mick Jagger Suite (second edition, deluxe set) [the complete "deluxe second edition" set of 10 (signed in black marker and the plate) announcement cards in the original printed folder - a "mini portfolio" - Marechal, Section 7c, no.33C]". Color offset lithographs. 1975. Each signed by Warhol in black marker. Set #191 of the edition of 250. Cream smooth wove paper. The full sheets. Strong, bright colors. Fine condition; each card numbered consecutively from one to ten, verso; card #10 with the Warhol stamp, as issued. Literature/catalogue raisonne: Paul Marechal, "Andy Warhol Ephemera...Catalogue Raisonne, 1950-1987." Lyon, France: Les amis du Musee de l'Imprimerie, 2018, Section 8c, no.33C; cf. Feldman/Schellmann II.138-147. Overall size: 6 1/8 x 4 in. (156 x 102 mm). Our example, the Deluxe Set of the second edition, is very scarce unsigned and rare signed. A signed example of the second edition sold for $20,910 at Swann Auction Galleries, New York City, June 9, 2011, lot #384. The second is signed in the plate both by Warhol and Jagger. The quantity printed of the standard set of the second edition is unknown. However, the Deluxe Set, printed for friends, relatives, Factory employees, substantial collectors, etc., was limited to 250. It was issued in a "crystal" semi-transparent envelope and sealed with a silver sticker bearing the number of the set, ours numbered 191. The set, on the verso of card #10, also bears the Andy Warhol stamp. Regarding the first edition, apparently the Castelli staff took photographs of the screenprints before Warhol and Jagger signed them and sent them to the printer. Realizing the mistake, the print run was halted and most impressions destroyed. The second edition was printed later after the actual screenprints had been signed, the photographs taken by Warhol himself. Co-published by Multiples Inc., New York, and Castelli Graphics, New York. Based on Warhol's portfolio of 10 color screenprints of Mick Jagger from 1975. Images copyright © Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts / Artists Rights Society (ARS), New York. [29784-1-8000]

The first edition is neither signed nor numbered in the plate and is 1/16" shorter in height than the second. The second is signed in the plate both by Warhol and Jagger and is numbered in the plate 2/250. High-grade archival paper. The full sheet. Fine, quality printing. Very good to fine condition; affixed to conservation mount. Image size: 4 9/16 x 7 in. (116 x 178 mm). Mexican stagecoach views from this period are virtually unobtainable. Gove's early photographs of Mexico are very rare and extremely important in the history of Mexican photography. Sometime in the late 1880s or early 1890s he entered into a partnership with F. E. North, the company becoming known as Gove & North. Gove later travelled to Los Angeles, where he became an integral part in the formation of the motion picture business. His seminal role in this industry has unfortunately gone largely unheralded. 349: ALBERT PINKHAM RYDER - Merlin & Vivien

Albert Pinkham Ryder (American, 1847-1917). "Merlin & Vivien". Oil on canvas. c1886-1892. Signed and titled, verso. Good condition save for a small hole, upper right, about 1/4" diameter. Frame size: 27 1/4 x 23 3/8 in. (692 x 594 mm). Image size: 24 x 20 in. (610 x 508 mm). A very large painting by Ryder and a masterful composition, where the two standing figures merge into the oak and become part of the tree itself. The inspiration for this work came from Tennyson: "A storm was coming, but the winds were still, And in the wild woods of Broceliande, Before an oak, so hollow, huge and old It looked a tower of ivied masonwork, At Merlin's feet the wily Vivien lay". From "Merlin and Vivien," the sixth poem in Alfred, Lord Tennyson's "Idylls of the King." [27887-10-30000]

358: CECIL BEATON - Marilyn Monroe 1956 #2

USD 600 - 800

Cecil Beaton (English, 1904 - 1980). "Marilyn Monroe 1956 #2". Original vintage photogravure. 1956. Printed 1968. Stamped with the photographer's name, verso. Edition unknown, presumed small. High-grade archival paper. Printed to the edge of the sheet. Fine, quality printing. Very good to fine condition; affixed to very thin and supple archival acid-free support sheet, not mount/board. Image size: 7 7/8 x 7 3/8 in. (200 x 187 mm). One from the famous series of photographs taken by Beaton of Monroe at the height of both of their storied careers. Although associated with 'Vogue' through most of his career, Beaton's 'Monroe' portfolio appeared in 'Harper's Bazaar', for which he worked in the mid-1950s. It was while in New York for the rehearsals and premiere of 'My Fair Lady' that Beaton photographed Monroe. With a possibility that he would be the designer of Monroe's dresses for 'The Prince and The Showgirl', Beaton arranged a photography sitting in his suite in the Ambassador Hotel in New York City on 22 February 1956. Ed Pfizenmaier, Beaton's assistant, noted that Monroe did her own make-up and 'came just by herself, with these two little dresses... it was as simple as that.' Beaton later recalled 'She romps, she squeals with delight, she leaps on the sofa. She puts a flower stem in her mouth, puffing on a daisy as though it were a cigarette. It is an artless, impromptu, high-spirited, infectiously gay performance. It will probably end in tears.' The session produced one of Monroe's favorite portraits, which hung in her New York apartment that she shared with her third husband, Arthur Miller. Image copyright © The Estate of Cecil Beaton. 360: ANDY WARHOL - Marilyn Diptych

USD 2,500 - 3,000

Andy Warhol (American, 1928 - 1987). "Marilyn Diptych [poster]". Color offset lithograph. Printed c1970-1985. Signed in black marker, center right. Edition unknown. Light cream wove paper. The full sheet. Very good impression. Good condition; studio stamp, verso. Overall size: 22 1/2 x 28 1/2 in. (571 x 724 mm). Image size: 16 5/8 x 25 7/8 in. (422 x 657 mm). Scarce, and rare signed. A lifetime printing by Shorewood Publishers. This image was also printed by Shorewood after Warhol's death. To the best of our knowledge, the print run of our example with the text reading "Andy Warhol (American 1930-) [sic]" is the only lifetime printing as a poster of this image. Undoubtedly to be included in the forthcoming catalogue raisonne of Warhol's non-commissioned posters by Paul Marechal. The painting was completed during the weeks after Monroe's death in August 1962. Sometimes referred to as "Marilyn x 50" it contains fifty images of the actress, which are all based on a single publicity photograph from the film 'Niagara' (1953). The twenty-five pictures on the left side of the diptych are brightly colored, while the twenty-five on the right are in black and white. It has been suggested that the relation between the left side of the canvas and the right side of the canvas is evocative of the relation between the celebrity's life and death. The painting is currently owned by the Tate. In a December 2, 2004 article in 'The Guardian', the painting was named the third most influential work of modern art in a survey of 500 artists, critics, and others. 367: ANDY WARHOL - Man Ray #1

USD 800 - 1,000

Andy Warhol (American, 1928 - 1987). "Man Ray #1". Color offset lithograph. 1974. Signed in black felt tip pen, center left. Edition unknown, presumed very small. Cream wove smooth paper. Printed to the edge of the sheet. Fine impression. Fine condition; affixed to very thin and supple archival acid-free support sheet, not mount/board. Literature/catalogue raisonne: cf. Feldman/Schellmann II.148. Overall size: 8 5/8 x 8 1/2 in. (219 x 216 mm). Rare. Issued to promote the 'Man Ray' exhibition at Galleria Il Fauno and Alexandre Lolas, Milan, Italy, in August of 1974. The show consisted of 28 separate images of Man Ray. Apparently there were very small quantities of this lithograph printed for distribution at the opening night reception and they went fast. Printed by Poligrafico Roggero & Tortia, Beinasco/Turin, Italy. In the early 1970s Warhol began to accept regular commissions to paint the portraits of the rich and famous. However, as well as commissions, he also painted a number of portraits of people he admired, especially other artists. Man Ray was one of his heroes, so much so that, when he could afford it, Warhol acquired a number of his photographs, paintings and early books. This image is based on a Polaroid photograph he took of him, cigar in mouth, in 1973. As with the portraits of his mother and other people he felt close to, these portraits of Man Ray are among the most painterly and heavily-worked Warhol ever painted. 368: DIANE ARBUS - Man at a Parade on Fifth Avenue, New York

USD 600 - 800

Diane Arbus (American, 1923-1971). "Man at a Parade on Fifth Avenue, New York". Original photogravure. 1969. Printed 1978. Stamped with the photographer's name, verso. High-grade archival paper. Ample margins. Fine, quality printing. Very good to fine condition. Overall size: 15 3/4 x 11 5/8 in. (400 x 295 mm). Image size: 9 15/16 x 10 in. (252 x 254 mm). Arbus here visits a public event – in this case a parade – but chooses to photograph a single person rather than document the crowds at the event. But if she hadn't told us in the title that the man was at a parade event, we wouldn't be able to tell – there are no signs of the festivities in this quiet image and, although Fifth Avenue is New York's busiest street, the pavement behind him is empty of people. He holds his hat gravely against his chest, presumably as a sign of respect, but for what cause we cannot know, inviting the viewer to imagine the crowd that is passing behind Arbus's back (courtesy National Galleries of Scotland). 376: FRANCISCO TOLEDO - Los Murcielagos

USD 800 - 900

Francisco Toledo (Mexican, 1940-2019). "Los Murcielagos ["Art Kite" (papalote) with paper tail]". Color stencil cut. c2009. Signed in blue ballpoint pen on the recto. Small edition. Dimensions without the tail: 28 1/8in x 22 15/16in x 3/16in (715mm x 583mm x 4mm). The tail is approximately 30in (762mm) long. Fine impression. Fine condition. Provenance: Private collection, Oaxaca, Mexico. Most of Toledo's kites are unsigned; only occasionally does he sign them, and then generally on the verso. Please note that the kite was photographed with the tail folded up - it does have the original tail. These art kites are created from a stencil drawn and cut by Toledo in Arches paper. The stencil is then pressed into a hand made sheet of paper and hand colored. When separated, the resulting contrast reveals the image. Some kites are hand-sprayed with dyes to create background effects, etc. Francisco Benjamín López Toledo is arguably Mexico's most famous living artist. He studied at the Escuela de Bellas Artes de Oaxaca and the Centro Superior de Artes Aplicadas del Instituto Nacional de Bellas Artes, Mexico, where he studied graphic arts with Guillermo Silva Santamaria. Edition unknown, presumed small. High-grade archival paper. Printed to the edge of the sheet. Fine, quality printing. Very good condition; affixed to very thin and supple archival acid-free support sheet, not mount/board. Image size: 6 x 8 in. (152 x 203 mm). One of Man Ray's most famous and compelling images. "Judging from his inclusion of this image in other photographic compositions, Man Ray must have considered 'Tears' one of his most successful photographs. Like the emotive expression of a silent screen star in a film still, the woman's plaintive upward glance and mascara-encrusted lashes seem intended to invoke wonder at the cause of her distress. The face, however, belongs not to a real woman but to a fashion mannequin who cries tears of glistening, round glass beads; the effect is to aestheticize the sentiment her tears would normally express. Man Ray made this photograph in Paris around the time of his breakup with his lover Lee Miller, and the woman's false tears may relate to that event in the artist's life." (Courtesy: Getty Museum). Jean Pierre Marie Jazet (French, 1788 - 1871). "La promenade du Jardin Turc - 1810 [Paris]". Color engraving, etching, and aquatint, with handcoloring. 1812. After Jean Joseph Bostier de Bez (1780-1845). An extremely rare proof (1 of 3) before letters. Cream wove paper. The full sheet, deckle edges four sides. An excellent impression. Condition: good; some foxing and browning with color attenuation; no serious problems. Literature/catalogue raisonne: See: Beraldi, Volume 8, pg. 229; IFF2; B4. Provenance: Ex-collection Cortlandt F. Bishop, with his stamp, verso; M. Knoedler, NYC, with their labels from frame back, separate from the print, since lost. Overall size: 16 x 23 3/4 in. (406 x 603 mm). Image size: 12 x 21 7/8 in. (305 x 556 mm). A rare print even with letters. We could find only three sales at auction, all with letters, in the past 25 years, the last in 1995 (sold at $1,168). The print shows a part of the Boulevard du Temple, then called the Boulevard du Crime. "Jean Pierre Marie Jazet was one of the most prominent aquatint engravers of the Napoleonic era. He worked almost exclusively in aquatint, reproducing the paintings of the grand Republican artists such as David, Vernet, de Gros, and Grenier. Although the majority of his prints were patriotic images, he also produced many fine aquatints of pastoral paintings and genre scenes. His fresh images exhibit the beauty of the medium and exemplify his amazing technical ability. His extremely complex prints are fluid yet detailed; they express the beautiful painterly technique of the medium..." Courtesy: Donald A. Heald. [24412-4-1000]

French worked in the prevalent pictorialist style which had developed in Southern California with the founding of the Camera Pictorialists of Los Angeles in 1914. Their annual exhibitions began in 1918, and among the founding members were Edward Weston, Margrethe Mather, Fred Archer, and Louis Fleckenstein. Although too little is known about French's life and career, his photographs speak of his skill in composition and his attention to lighting and detail. 531: OTTO MESSMER - Felix the Cat Posing #2

USD 2,000 - 2,500

Otto Messmer (American, 1892-1983). "Felix the Cat Posing #2 [Pat Sullivan Studio]". Pen and ink on paper. e1970s. Signed lower right. Cream colored wove paper. Very good to fine condition with no condition issues. Overall size: 5 5/8 x 4 1/8 in. (143 x 105 mm). The closest comparable sale we have found to our example is a sale for $1,912 at Heritage Auctions, April 9, 2015, lot #94002. Messmer created the character Felix the Cat, the world's most popular cartoon star before Mickey Mouse. The attribution has been questioned by some, in part because of the claims of Australian cartoonist, promoter, and producer Pat Sullivan, for whom Messmer worked. The cartoons were unfailingly billed as "Pat Sullivan's Felix the Cat." Sullivan widely asserted that he and his wife had invented a black cat as a film character. Although the two undoubtedly collaborated to some degree, and it is unlikely that the cartoon would have been as popular without Sullivan's promotion, Messmer's biographer concluded that Messmer himself was the creative mind behind Felix, and that assertion is broadly accepted. Finally, most prominent comics and animation historians support Messmer's claim, as do the veterans of the Sullivan studio. Image copyright © The Estate of Otto Messmer. [29877-1-1500]

Literature/catalogue raisonne: Zigrosser 134. Provenance: Private Collection, Scottsdale, Arizona. Overall size: 11 x 14 in. (279 x 356 mm). Image size: 6 7/8 x 8 3/4 in. (175 x 222 mm). According to 'Gordon's Art Reference' another example of this very rare first printing sold at a record price of $12,000 at Swann Auction Galleries, New York, March 9, 2010, lot #222. The second edition size is variously given as c275 to c500-600, with the former probably being correct. According to Zigrosser, the total edition of the New Republic portfolio exceeded 500, but the quota for Marin prints was divided between this print and another of his etchings. Compositionally, 'Downtown, The El' expresses the energy of the city through bold diagonal lines that cut across the composition. Remarkering on this etching, Marin noted: "I see great forces at work – great movements – the large buildings and the small buildings – the warring of the great and the small -- influences of one mass on another." 572: ANDY WARHOL - Dollar Signs - $$$

Andy Warhol (American, 1928 - 1987). "Dollar Signs - $$$ [laundry bag]". Black marker drawings on green rip-stop nylon laundry bag. c1980. Signed by Warhol and dedicated "To Rupert [Jasen Smith]". Unique. Fine condition with no issues. Literature/catalogue raisonne: See Feldman/Schellmann IIC.49 for examples of screenprints on laundry bags. Provenance: Gifted by Andy Warhol to Rupert Jasen Smith, in turn gifted by Smith in 1987 to private collector, Sweden, thence to our consignor. Rupert Jasen Smith was Warhol's primary offsite printer from 1977 until 1987, responsible for printing thousands of Warhol's paintings and prints, including all of the screenprints on laundry bags. Overall size: 44 x 27 in. (1118 x 686 mm). A unique and very rare item. Our example is one of only three known drawings of a dollar sign that Warhol executed on a laundry bag. The silkscreened bags themselves have fetched as much as $193,000 at auction in the past few years. Beginning in the late 1970s, Warhol and his master printer Rupert Jasen Smith worked together to produce a very small number of silkscreens on green laundry bags. The screenprinted images included those of Joseph Beuys and Warhol's celebrated Cow. Our particular example was probably left over from one of these printing sessions, at which time Warhol drew the images and signed and dedicated it. Borje Bengtsson recalls seeing a few of the silkscreened bags in Smith's studio in 1987, after Warhol's death, at which time Smith gave the bag (our example) to Bengtsson. 577: YVES KLEIN - Deux Timbres Bleus

USD 5,000 - 6,000

Yves Klein (French, 1928-1962). "Deux Timbres Bleus". IKB pigment on postage stamps. 1957-1959. Edition unknown. Fine condition. Provenance: The stamps were originally a gift of the artist to the head of the design department for printed matter and catalogs for the Moderna Museet, Stockholm, Sweden in the late fifties and early sixties. Bengtsson Fine Art, Sweden, acquired them from this employee and they then were purchased at artnet.com. Overall size: 1 x 1 9/16 in. (25 x 40 mm). Sets of two joined Klein Timbre Bleu stamps are rare and have sold at auction as high as $5,580 (€4,000) (Cornette de Saint Cyr, Paris, 10/24/2010, lot #96). Individual stamps have sold at auction as high as $11,930 (€9,000) (Piasa, Paris, 01/21/2014, lot #94). Effectively Yves Klein paintings in miniature, these stamps are from a series Klein made in 1957 by painting blocks of blank stamps with what was to become his signature, the patented blue pigment officially registered as IKB, or "International Klein Blue". The blue stamps were created for mailing invitations to the opening of two pivotal exhibitions, in May 1957, at the Galerie Iris Clert Gallery and the Galerie Colette Allendy Gallery, both in Paris. The postal authorities were cajoled by Klein into accepting the stamps as if they were actual postage stamps printed by the French government, and they delivered all of the invitations. Klein's handmade blue stamps thus formed an important part of the "performance" that every Yves Klein gallery opening entailed (in addition to being a venue, in the conventional sense, for introducing Klein's latest work to the public). Klein continued to use the stamps for two years following their 1957 introduction. Image copyright © Artists Rights Society (ARS), New York / ADAGP, Paris. [29882-1-3000]

580: DIEGO RIVERA - Desnudo Sentado con Brazos Levantados [Frida Kahlo Kahlo]

USD 60,000 - 70,000

Diego Rivera (Mexican, 1886 - 1957). "Desnudo Sentado con Brazos Levantados [Frida Kahlo] [drawing]". Original pencil drawing on paper. 1930. Signed and dated in pencil, lower right. Paper: double sheet, deckle edged four sides, cream laid paper, watermarked "MBM (France) [middle of sheet] Ingres D'Arches [right hand of sheet]". Condition: overall good condition; a few scattered fox marks; slight paper attenuation of the recto finished image (left facing), tending from cream to white (the right facing sketch folded back for framing); handling marks throughout; minor tape remains from previous mounting; pencil annotation upper left corner, recto; no holes, tears, creases, nor staining. Provenance: Estate of an important private collector, Puebla, Mexico. The finished drawing for the highly sought after lithograph of Frida Kahlo, which Rivera created in 1930. Rivera and Kahlo married on August 21, 1929, in Coyoacan, Mexico City. The full "double sheet" has been folded in half, with the finished drawing on the left, the preliminary sketch on the right, recto. The sheet has not been joined together - it is one continuous sheet. There is a ghost/offset image on the verso of the preliminary sketch which matches that of Rivera's lithograph 'Desnudo de Dolores Olmedo', also created in 1930 by Rivera. Apparently the verso of the Dolores Olmedo lithograph was laid on top of the verso of the finished drawing; then the drawing was folded, leaving the impression of the Olmedo lithograph on the verso of the preliminary sketch. The paper used by Rivera to compose the drawing is a laid texture paper, is pre-1920, and has a rattle-like linen content. It has four distinct deckle edges, indicating a hand made paper. Recent versions of this paper are made on a cylinder mould that have two deckle edges and two torn edges, as the sheet is torn from a long length of paper. Dimensions - Full sheet 24 7/8 x 19 in (63.2 x 48.3 cm); Finished drawing 16 5/8 x 11 1/8 in (42.2 x 28.3cm); Sketch drawing 14 1/2 x 9 5/8in (36.8 x 24.5cm). Composed with oil, watercolor, gouache, and crayon, painted on a single sheet of newspaper ("Le Nouveau Journal de Strasbourg" October 1920 issue). The sheet is mounted to a firm but flexible contemporary board. Provenance: Private collection, Kentfield, California; formerly collection George Wittenborn, Wittenborn Art Books, New York City, sold in the 1950s; acquired by Wittenborn during or shortly after the second of the Adolfo Muller-Ury estate sales at the Plaza Art Galleries in New York City in December, 1947. The second sale included material from consignors in addition to the Muller-Ury estate. It is doubtful that the picture was owned by Muller-Ury; rather, a different consignor in the second Plaza sale. As the noted art historian Stephen Conrad has indicated about this painting, "The fact that it [our example] appeared in the second of his [Muller-Ury's] estate sales at the Plaza Art Galleries in New York in December 1947 is not proof of his ownership, the reason being that many lots in these sales were from other vendors...It remains highly unlikely that he [Muller-Ury] would have owned anything as modern as this constructivist work, as he is on record in the 1940s as saying, 'The saddest thing on God's earth is modern art...'. Overall size: (board) 17 5/8 x 13 3/4 in. (448 x 349 mm). Image size: 17 5/8 x 12 5/8 in. (448 x 321 mm). While Annenkov is best known for his portraits, like other Russian artists of his time he was influenced by the Constructivist movement, the artistic and architectural force that originated in Russia in 1919. Our rare and superb example of Annenkov's Constructivist oeuvre was painted at the froth of that movement. [24951-3-16000]

Evans selected this image for the portfolio as representative of the work he did in Cuba, where he made a series of single and group portraits of coal dock workers. (211 x 213 mm). According to "Gordon's Photography Prices" the auction record for a silver print of this image is $511,500 realized at Christie's, New York, 4/6/2017, lot #12. Arbus's direct, confrontational approach to photography meant that her subjects did not always like their portraits. After seeing his, the writer Norman Mailer famously said, "giving a camera to Diane Arbus is like putting a live grenade in the hands of a child". Here the grenade is just a toy, yet Arbus again makes an unconventional portrait of her subject. On the contact sheet, it is evident that Arbus did make 'typical' portraits of the boy smiling, but she chose to print only this unusual shot. He stands stiffly, his hands clenched like claws, with a crazed expression on his face. The portrait seems sinister, yet it could reflect something more ordinary – the exasperation of any child made to stand still and have his picture taken (courtesy National Gallery of Scotland). Thus began Lee Miller, Man Ray's artistic collaborator and lover, in a 1975 interview recalling her version of how the two artists discovered the solarization process. Miller continued, "I never did find out what it was, a mouse or what. Then I quickly realized that the film was totally exposed: there in the development tank, ready to be taken out, were a dozen practically fully-developed negatives of a nude against a black background . . . Man Ray grabbed them, put them in the hypo, and looked at them later. The background and the image couldn't heal together, so there was a line left which he called 'solarization.'" While working with Miller, Man Ray made numerous photographs exploring the effects of tone reversal in solarization. This image, part of a series of calla lilies, shows the thin black line that separates areas where reversal has occurred from areas where it has not. (Courtesy: Getty Museum). 687: HENRI CARTIER-BRESSON - Behind the Gare St. Lazare

USD 1,200 - 1,500

Henri Cartier-Bresson (French, 1908 - 2004). "Behind the Gare St. Lazare". Original vintage photogravure. 1932. Printed 1953. Stamped with the photographer's name, verso. Edition unknown, presumed small. High-grade archival paper. Printed to the edge of the sheet. Fine, quality printing. Very good to fine condition; affixed to very thin and supple archival acid-free support sheet, not mount/board. Image size: 13 9/16 x 9 1/8 in. (344 x 232 mm). Although Cartier-Bresson noted that he did not prefer any one of his pictures to the others, historians regard "Behind The Gare Saint-Lazare" as his most iconic photograph. He took the black and white photograph in 1932 outside the Saint-Lazar train station in Paris. Color film did not exist at the time and professional photographers rarely used artificial lighting in their works. Regardless, the natural skylight and the black and white lens add elements to the photograph that color and artificial lighting could not. Cartier-Bresson noticed the beautiful frame from the hardly visible architectural buildings in the background to the pool of rainwater in the foreground. Still, he needed a subject. He waited and waited until a busy businessman ran across the pool of water onto a broken and disregarded ladder. He snapped the picture just as the man was in the process of jumping from the ladder back into the water, adding a layer of contrast between the man's hurry and the water's stillness. [25078-3-800]

Literature/catalogue raisonne: Lissitzky-Kuppers 40. Image size: 18 1/4 x 22 1/8 in. (464 x 562 mm). An extremely important print and arguably El Lissitzky's most famous image. Our example compares favorably with the example printed c1926 which sold for $41,400 at Swann Galleries, New York City, April 21, 2005, lot #70. In this propaganda object published during the Russian Civil War, the intrusive red wedge symbolizes the Bolsheviks, who are penetrating and defeating their opponents, the White Movement. Lazar Markovich Lissitzky was a Russian artist, designer, photographer, typographer, polemicist, and architect. He was an important figure of the Russian avant garde, helping develop suprematism with his mentor, Kazimir Malevich, and designing numerous exhibition displays and propaganda works for the former Soviet Union. His work greatly influenced the Bauhaus and constructivist movements, and he experimented with production techniques and stylistic devices that would go on to dominate 20th-century graphic design. 704: PIERRE-AUGUSTE RENOIR - Baigneuse debout, a Mi-Jambes

Pierre-Auguste Renoir (French, 1841 - 1919). "Baigneuse debout, a Mi-Jambes". Original etching. c1906. Printed later. Cream wove paper. Full margins. Very good impression. Fine condition. Literature/catalogue raisonne: Delteil 23; Stella 23. Overall size: 14 13/16 x 11 3/8 in. (376 x 289 mm). Image size: 6 3/4 x 4 5/16 in. (171 x 110 mm). During the second half of the nineteenth century, France was experiencing a printmaking renaissance. Despite this artistic trend, Impressionists were not quick to adopt the medium as they were accustomed to painting in plein air. However, Renoir learned the medium, creating his first etching in 1890 and his first lithograph two years later. During this time, Renoir was 49 and already an established painter. Yet, he executed a total of 59 prints in his lifetime, producing almost equal amounts of lithographs and etchings. Impressively, he was able to develop his own style of etching independent of his development as a painter [courtesy Masterworks Fine Art]. [2646-3-300]

Arbus often combined the ordinary and the strange within a single image, to create photographs that surprise or shock the viewer. Here a man stands in a normal, slightly shabby hotel room looking blankly into the corner. It is only when you look more closely that you see that his feet are turned the wrong way round. The picture was made for a project on eccentrics that Arbus had proposed to Esquire and here features Joe Allen, 'the Backwards Man', a contortionist who worked in Hubert's Museum, one of several 'freak shows' that Arbus visited for the project. In her notes on the assignment she mused that he was "a metaphor for human destiny – walking blind into the future with an eye on the past" (courtesy National Galleries of Scotland). "This is a classic and famous street photograph by Cartier-Bresson taken in Marseille. The photograph is intriguing. The man has a great bowler cap on, an ominous black cape, an umbrella by his side, and what appears to be a cigarette sticking out of his mouth. He is facing toward Cartier-Bresson but looking off to the side. It was almost as if Cartier-Bresson caught this man by surprise and he turned around to see what was going on. In the background you have the alley of leafless trees going all the way straight down. The whole photo feels a bit dark, mysterious, and slightly sinister" (courtesy Lorenzo Rabotoff). 740: ANDY WARHOL - After the Party

Andy Warhol (American, 1928 - 1987). "After the Party [collage/mixed media]". Collage/mixed media on fabric. 1979. Signed and dated in black marker by Warhol, lower center. Unique. Overall condition very good with no holes or tears. There are scattered spots (from Champagne?) primarily on the recto, and some minor staining, primarily on the verso. The object, a woman's size small, is cotton with a nylon lining, wearable, with the zipper fully functional. The compositional ink was applied with skill and care. Collage elements: the word "After" consists of black sequins sewn onto "appliqué mesh" and surrounded with embroidered white yarn, the mesh then sewn to the dress; the word "The" is composed with black sequins but without the corresponding yarn, the mesh sewn to the object; the word "Party" consists of red beadwork sewn to the appliqué mesh, thence sewn to the dress. The mesh edges have not been trimmed or folded. Literature/catalogue raisonne: See Feldman/Schellmann II.183 (pg. 102) for the editioned screenprint. Overall size: 36 5/8 x 18 3/4 in. (930 x 476 mm). A unique, classic, and very rare item, previously unrecorded. The image of our object is based on, but is not identical to, Warhol's "After the Party" screenprint of 1979 (attached to this catalogue as image #10). That print is white (with a rainbow roll drawing line) on a black background, whereas our example is black (without the rainbow roll) on a white background. The print's image is horizontal whereas ours is vertical. In addition there is a large undefined object lower center in our work, not found in the screenprint. Thus it appears that our image was created using a screen different than that of the editioned print. This fact plus the extensive collage work marks it as one of a kind. According to 'Gordon's Art Reference' the auction record for the screenprint itself, issued in an edition of 1,000, is $32,500 (Phillips, New York, April 28th, 2014, lot #63). According to an "art-worker" at Warhol's 860 Broadway "Factory," a socialite showed up for a late-night party there wearing this plain white dress. She left in the wee hours of the morning wrapped in a large piece of canvas, sans clothing. Over the next few days Warhol and various Warhol "Superstars" applied their magic and created the work. He studied painting and sculpture in La Esmeralda National School of Painting and Sculpture from 1940 to 1945 under Juan Cruz, Francisco Zuniga and Santos Balmori, and was later a teacher there himself.
